

More than half of respondents believe that the current situation is a crisis for the world economy.

